Subject: Surplus comments

Hi Craig,

These are Auction Houses that are in the Area, with explanation of why I choose Booker.

- 1 - Washington Surplus. Small item Auction (Baseball cards, coin collections Action figures etc...)
- 2 - Vail International. Large Auction, but Horrible reviews online about their service and shady business dealings.
- 3 - Trucks Auto Auction (Musser). I have spoken on the phone several times to set up an account to use them. They never get back to me with Agreements, Instructions anything to help me do business with them.
- 4 - A-Jacks Auction. Auction vehicles only and mostly Repos from their Towing Service.
- 5 - Rad Towing. Sells Abandoned vehicles from there tow company.
- 6 - Bookers Auction. Sells all equipment that we surplus. Always keep in contact and usually get very good money for our surplus.

Thank You,

Greg Snyder

Craig Erdman,

Auction Selection Process (Expanded)

Washington Surplus. Visited the website to see what kind of Auctions they provided. After going through the site I determined they only held Auctions for small collectables and similar items, no vehicles or equipment.

Vail International. Visited this website as well. After confirming that they did sell larger items such as cars, trucks and equipment, I checked the online reviews to find they have very bad reviews. I went in to double check the review process a few days ago to find they have not changed and may be a little more negative. I do not feel Franklin County Should take a chance on some of the negative things that were said about them.

Trucks Auto Auction. In the spring of 2019 I received a call from Jake Musser (I believe is his name) He was presenting his Auction to me to see if Franklin County would be interested in using the Auction. After he gave me the details, I let him know we would be very interested in trying them out. I asked him if they were on a State Contract or Sourcewell contract. He told me they had a contract with Franklin County as they had sold property for us in the past. I let him know I would like to have a copy of that contract and an agreement that I could look over. I told him we would have equipment for auction in November and if he got back to me I would like to get the process started. I never heard back from him.

In the spring of 2021 he called me again and asked the same questions with the same response as before, the only difference is I reminded him we had this conversation before and he never followed up. I let him know we would have equipment again in November and he needed to get back to me with some information to get started. Again that was the last time I spoke with him.

A-Jacks Auction. As we do business with A-Jacks Towing and Body Shop I am aware of their Auction where they sell cars and trucks. We usually sell a lot more than just vehicles and really do not like to split it up especially since we already do business with them. The cost of splitting it up versus streamlining does not make sense to me.

Rad Towing. I never considered using them I just listed them as they were one of the local Auction houses. They seem to just Auction vehicles that they Repo.

Bookers Auction. As stated in my summary Booker Auction will sell everything we have for surplus. I have worked with them many times and they always keep me informed of the whole process. Camille Booker contacts me in the spring and early fall to see if we have any surplus to auction off. As stated in my summary we usually get pretty good compensation for the goods we send there.

Note: On Monday February 27th I received an email from Craig Erdman from WSAC. The email contained information regarding WSAC Partners With Public Surplus. I have since been researching the program and feel it can be a great benefit to Franklin County Public Works. I am in the process of getting the 30 minute presentation they have for this service. Just an FYI.

Thank you,
